----	-----------------------------------------------------------------	-----------------------------	--	--	--

We invited our students to share their thoughts, ideas, insights, or everything in the form of poetries, write-ups, photographs, extempore, or in the form of anything. We've received several responses from our students through different forms which are posted on our social media handles.

The celebration of International Women's Day is celebrated on the 8th of March, 2023. The mode of celebration is online through our social media with poetry and sketches shared by our students with us.

The special talk on the celebration of International Women's Day by Ms. Asiya Shervani on the topic of 'Unboxing Sexual Harassment in Educational Spaces' is jointly organized by the Internal Complaints Committee and the Gender Champion Cell on 23rd March 2023. The mode of this event is offline which is conducted in the convocation hall at the Department of Archaeology. This event is quite successful with a huge number of participants. All the participants were hooked by the beautiful and eloquent style of the talk delivered by Ms Shervani which was followed by an almost an hour-long interactive session. Ms Shervani addressed the issues and aware the students with the best examples.

Gender Champions Cell celebrates the birth anniversary of Mahatma Jyotirao Phule. The mode of the celebration is online. A poetic celebration is done with the help of our social media platforms.

Celebration of International Women's Day:

gender_champions_cell_dc_pune It was as if
A bolt of lightening hit me,
Under a shade of life,
I could not move,
Hear or smile.
Breathe, anything.
My arms, rugged. Swollen.
Lips, not smiling.
Eyes, not twinkling.
Heart, still beating,
It was as if,
I was somewhere I wasn't supposed to be..
Under social pressures,
Hypocrites,
Half headed opinions,
Physical abuse, and no counter action.
Radiation from the worst of those,
Who believed it was the best,
They had offered me -
A life they designed, and I run upon.
A life, I had no idea, was a life so bad,
It didn't look like one.
What I could see, in the mirror,
Was a personality, formed and collapsed
Multiple times, everyday.

But now it was as if,
I denied to bury in the same chaos, today.
One objection, had replaced,
All the bandages of false hopes.
I could finally love myself again,
I could finally, reveal myself again.
I could finally, breathe again.

Happy International Women's Day! ❤️

Celebration of the Birthday of Mahatma Jyotirao Phule:

gender_champions_cell_dc_pune When love was confined within four walls.

He stood up, and opened the windows,
For his wife, to see the world,
And make others see it,
The way it should be seen,
Within colours of petals, scents of sandalwood,
Within the souls of people who looked like demons.

When strength was confined within a gender,
He stood up, and opened the doors,
For his wife, to show the world,
And make others see,
The strength of her hands,
Who held spatula and pen, altogether, whenever required,
And birthed miracles,
Using both.

When education was confined within a section of society,
He stood up, and opened the lids,
For his wife, to believe in the world,
And make others believe,
The opportunity that knocked their doors,
Within a range of mere 26 letters,
And their combination:

When humanity was confined within those who fought,
He stood up, and opened the hearts,
For his wife, to spread the warmth of motherhood she had,
And make others rest,
Under her pile of emotions, that she shed in her poetry.

When integrity was confined,
Within a few days,
He stood up, and opened the pavements,
For his wife, in the eras to come,
And see, shine, remember and be remembered for,
It was mere honesty, and purity,
That he pulled the threads of,
And weaved a better India,
For those, who celebrate "Her"!
